W. I. Celebrates Stag Mock Wedding 20th Anniversary

Tuesday, June 11th was a red letter day for the Champion W. I. when they celebrated the twentieth anniversary of their association by entertaining representatives from the various branches in the Constituency in honor of the past presidents of the local branch. Following a short business session, a delightful repast was served in the dining room of the Community hall presided over by Mrs. M. G. Clever as toastmistress. The table was centred with a beautifully decorated cake with twenty candles in the pink and white motif which was the predominant setting for the occasion, these being the colors of the organization. With the lighting of the candles, members pledged themselves to keep afloat the work of the W. I. A pink carnation was presented to each past-president in the gathering. Letters were read from those unable to attend, as follows: Mesdames McGregor, Fry, Steves, Alcock, and also one from Mrs. Hoskins a former member now living in Vancouver. The toast to the Champion was proposed by Mrs. Art Jopling and replied to by Mrs. Ulrich. The toast to "Our Visitors," was proposed by Mrs. Bastin and replied to by members from Vulcan, Good Deeds, Barons, Hugh Hill and Garden Prairie. Mrs. Elio Beaudier gave an address on "High Lights of the W. I." and interesting talks were given by Mrs. Caldwell, Mrs. R. I. Baker and Mrs. Hummel on past experiences as well as from Mrs. Jopling and Mrs. Bond who were the only two charter members present. Interspersed with the speeches, were delightful musical selections contributed by Miss Jean Anderson, Misses Doty, Caldwell and Louie Stephens and two vocal solos by Roy Peter Dawson and G. L. Campbell. Two minutes silence was observed following the reading of the Honor Roll, out of respect to those members who have passed on. Proceedings closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

Norman Patterson entertained at a stag party on Monday evening in honor of Donald Bond whose marriage to Miss Dora Taylor took place in Carman on Wednesday. The feature of the evening was a mock wedding which claimed Frank Caldwell as bride. The bride who was given in marriage by her father, W. Ulrich, was attended by I. Fisher who was becomingly attired in bright red. Jimmy Walker was best man and Arnold Bond acted as flower girl. The ceremony was conducted by G. M. Campbell in a very efficient manner. The reception following the wedding found all present in an extremely gay mood. The groom was presented with a set of salad forks and teaspoons and another small gift all of which he suitably acknowledged on behalf of Miss Taylor and himself.

Those present included: I. Fisher, E. Ashmore, Walter Henderson, Ralph Bond, Dean Smith, O. Taylor, Don Stephenson, Harold Stephenson, Art Ulrich, Don Campbell, Max Caldwell, Frank Caldwell, A. Bond, G. M. Campbell, Jimmy Walker, Ted Ashmore, W. Ulrich, Don Patterson, E. Mifflin, Charlie Douglas, George Davey and Gordon McLean.

building, on the East end of our Municipal District, moved Councilor Ellis, that the price for this work at $8.00 per running mile, it being estimated, that approximately 5 rounds, or 15 miles would give the ratepayers a decent road on this mile and a half stretch, in the Clifton District. (Carried)

The matter of allocations to Public Works was the next discussion, and councillor Hopkins moved that the following allocations be adapted for the respective divisions for 1935:

|----------------|------------|
| Division No. 1 | $500.00   |
| " 2            | $200.00   |
| " 3            | $800.00   |
| " 4            | $470.00   |
| " 5            | $510.00   |
| " 6            | $805.00   |
|                | $3,985.00 |

In addition to the above specified allocations, the motion included that the sum of $500.00 for General Machinery 1935 repairs etc. be adopted, the motion carried unanimously.

Moved by Councillor Hopkins that the Secretary Treasurer be appointed as assessor for 1935 (Carried)

The Higher Yields from Small Plots

Scientific experiments at Governmental institutions have often noted the superior yields that come from small plots sown by hand, as compared with the lower yields obtained from large sowing and collected with the machinery. Investigations that have been made, particularly at the Dominion Experimental Farm, Saskatoon, have revealed that the differences in yields are mainly due to the fact that on small plots weeds are usually all removed by hand, whereas on large fields the implements permit a certain percentage of the weeds to thrive.

It is evident, therefore, that much valuable moisture will be saved if weeds are well kept down on small plots.

SYNOPSIS

Nancy Nelson is a sub-deb, a gray, irresponsible girl of nineteen, with no care beyond the choice of her costume for her coming-out party. Suddenly, in the market crash, her indulgent father loses all his money, and his family is faced with the necessity of a simpler method of living. At this juncture a letter is received from an eccentric relative in Colorado, who offers the girl a home on conditions that will be impossible conditions.

Now Go On With The Story

Thus before they slept that night, the two young people knew that they were to go "out West." The arguments pro and con had waged for a good two hours, Aunt Louise protesting vigorously to every last fact that her nephew would retort with the manners of "a bear."

"And I warn you too, young man," she asserted grimly, "that you won't find life on a ranch the romantic dream you're picturing to yourself at present. As for your sister—"

At this point Louise faltered her end with a "tragic" gesture which caused even Nancy to smile a little. There was no doubt whatever that Aunt Louise had been up to no virtue in what she termed "this wild, ridiculous scheme of Jack's"; and even Aunt Judy suggested with some reluctance that if the boy must go, it might be wise for him to go alone.

"All right," he retorted, impatient at what seemed a deadlock, "if it is too much of a hot-house flower to stand transplanting—if she can't put up with a few hardships a time like this, I will go alone, though possibly—"

He hesitated, and his father ended for him: "You're thinking that it's Nancy whom Cousin Columbine really wants to come?"

Jack nodded.
"She might not pay my carfare if I went alone, Dad."

"So if you go, it looks as if I'd have to," said the girl bitterly. "I suppose if I get unbearably fed up with everything I can walk back."

"Two thousand miles on the hoof?" grinned her brother, looking perfectly aware that she spoke with sarcasm. "That's where your pioneer blood shows up, my dear! If you find our aged relative too impossible you can stand hitch-hike. See here! I promise solemnly that if you can't stand the job after a month or two, we'll hitch-hike back together. The experiment won't cost Dad a cent; and the chances are we'll have a whale of a good time."

"Good time!" spat out his paternal aunt; when Mother interrupted: "But, Louise, can you see any especially good times for the children if they stay at home?"

Every one turned to her in surprise; while Aunt Louise responded: "Burdly, Margaret, you don't approve of this idea?"

"Not wholly; but I've a feeling that both Jack and Nancy will be happier in absolutely new surroundings for a time. It's not easy for young folks to adjust themselves to such radical changes as we'll have to make. Of course I shall worry about Nancy; but if she's too unhappy I think we can manage to bring her back without the necessity of hitch-hiking! What do you say, Nancy?"

It was then that Nancy, glancing at her father as if for help, saw something in his face that made her heart contract. For the first time she realized what this catastrophe had done to Dad. Why, he looked old! she thought in consternation. He looked worried—rightly worried; and all this talk was worrying him still more. Yet here she was hesitating to accept a chance to earn her living, and because the thought of doing something hard going so far away, seemed undesirable. What had Jack called her the other night? A parlor ornament? Well, he was right, wasn't he? That's about all she measured up to. For one swift, illuminating moment the girl saw herself as others saw her, and was honestly appalled. Dad would never admit it, but her absence and Jack's would be a help just now. All this and more went through her mind in a revealing flash before she answered with new-born bravery.

"Of course I'm going! I had to get used to the idea, that's all. It may not be very exciting at Cousin Columbine's, Mother, but it'll be interesting; won't it—seeing new places and people? Let's not talk any more. It's settled as far as I'm concerned. Come on, Jack, we'd better make a list of things to take."

"And don't forget your nightgowns," spoke up the little brother; so, after all, the discussion ended on a smile.

CHAPTER V.

Waking suddenly at a nerve-racking jolt, Nancy sat up, wondering if that first startled instant, where she could be. Then her brain cleared and she realized that she was aboard a train headed for Colorado, and wondered if they had run into something, and if she ought to waken Jack or get up and see for herself. Surely there had been no such jolt the night before. For a moment she listened tensely in expectation of some confusion; then raised the window shade, peering out into the dim, grey light of early morning.

The train had stopped before a station and her car was directly opposite the brightly lighted restaurant. Nancy could see a girl of about her own age dressed in a crisp white uniform, serving some trainee at a lunch counter. She wondered if the waitress had been up all night or was just beginning her day's work. Probably the latter, for she looked fresh enough; but what a ghastly hour to go to the station!

A man and woman carrying suitcases emerged from the waiting room, and a moment later Nancy felt them brush by her section, speaking to the porter in hushed voices. A cheerful time to be starting on a journey, she thought ironically, but perhaps out here where the distances were so great, one had to start when one could.

There followed another jolt. Evidently the engine had been detached, and was coupling on again. The wheels turned slowly, and then fast. Nancy started, her eyes to catch the name of the station. Dodge City—and shivering a little, pulled down the shade and snuggled under the blankets.

So they were still in Kansas, Kansas! The idea that she could be there was incredible to Nancy Nelson. Why, Kansas had always seemed so far away as the North Pole, and fully as unattractive! People lived there, of course, but not people like themselves. At Aunt Louise's was how the girl had thought about it; yet that waitress in the lunch room looked—why she looked every bit as up-to-date as the girls behind the lunch counters at Thompson's Spa on Washington Street in Boston.

This comparison brought a wave of homesickness to the unwilling exile. What a three weeks it had been since Jack received those telegram from Cousin Columbine! Such a hectic time. Aunt Judy starting off for Europe with those crazy fumes. Hurried trips to Quebec with Mother. Packing. Deciding what to take and what to leave behind. Getting tickets and reservations. And those moments at the South Station with Phil wanting to know how he and the other sections had been asking a thousand foolish questions. Mother smiling unattractively to keep from crying—Aunt Louise arriving almost the last second with a box of candy, and Dad, his face so terribly set and stern.

Just to recall it made Nancy shudder. Even Jack had lost his enthusiasm for a time and hadn't talked much until the train left Worcester. But a meal in the diner had restored his courage, and since then he'd been the jolliest of companions. She hadn't realized before how nice her brother really was. Now, once he had compared her to a hot-house flower or a parlor ornament. Not even when he caught her winking away some tears as the train pulled out.

Nancy slept after a while, but not for long. It was Jack who wakened her, slipping down his berth and snapping up the window shade.

"Wake up, sis!" he commanded in a choked, earnest tone. "The train's here. Why, that's—that must be prairie!"

It was! Nancy sat up, almost as excited as her brother. Prairie! Miles and miles of it, stretching endlessly into a far horizon. Neither of them had dimly realized the vastness of those great plains they were to cross—plains which lay dappled by morning sunlight, softly undulating, as far as their astonished eyes could reach.

For the first time since starting on this journey Nancy forgot her homesickness and was thrilled. She drew a breath from both amazement and delight. To see the entire life had been so close either in a crowded city or surrounded by the sheltering, green hills of New England, and this seemed the vastness of those great plains they were to cross—plains which lay dappled by morning sunlight, softly undulating, as far as their astonished eyes could reach.

Even Jack was silent, too interested, perhaps, to comment; but he said: "Let's dress, Nancy. I want to get out and sniff this air at the next station. Breakfast at Syracuse anyhow, and say! I think the sun looks brighter here than it does at home."

This was no idle guess. The sun was brighter—the air more sparkling. Nancy admitted that she had never breathed such air. They cut short their breakfast in purpose, and in the distance patches of green about some lonely ranch.

Even Jack was silent, too interested, perhaps, to comment; but he said: "Let's dress, Nancy. I want to get out and sniff this air at the next station. Breakfast at Syracuse anyhow, and say! I think the sun looks brighter here than it does at home."

"And in no time now," said Jack as they swung reluctantly aboard the train again. "We'll be in Colorado, I wonder who Cousin Columbine will meet to meet us."

Nancy smiled.
"Do you remember her first letter? I was so set in my station until called for!"

"So you were! Do you suppose they'll keep up waiting long? Gee, Nance! I just can't realize that this long trip is nearly over!"

Neither could Nancy; but all too soon they found themselves waiting their turn to leave the train. Goodbyes to friendly fellow passengers had been spoken. A snail porter had brushed away the cinders. Nancy, standing behind Jack in the narrow passage, realized suddenly that the hands clutching her pocketbook were trembling. Indeed, all the fear that had gripped her on leaving home was back again as she stepped into the sunlight and joined her brother on the platform.

Jack, smiling a negative to an approaching red cap, rescued their bags

"WOULD NOT BE WITHOUT SASKASKAL"

Says Regina Woman
Indigestion Gave Her Everything

Read this letter: "For several years I had been troubled with indigestion and could eat very few foods which agreed with me. A friend of mine suggested that I try Saskaskal, which I did, and it has entirely cured me, and now I can eat anything. I would not be without a bottle of Saskaskal in my home, and I have seen many benefit as I have done when they know that Saskaskal is Nature's own Mineral Salt. It alkaline action neutralizes overacidity in the blood, and thus makes it a valuable natural remedy in all cases of Constipation, Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney troubles, Indigestion, Biliousness, etc."

At All Drug Stores—6c

from a pile of luggage, and moved toward the station—a beautiful station that made Nancy think of an English manor house, the west, against an unbelievably blue sky, towered snow-capped Pike's Peak, seeming so near in the clear atmosphere, that the girl felt she could reach out and touch it.

"This place certainly looks civilized enough," she observed breathlessly as Jack dropped the bags and stood looking about in search of the expected escort.

"Civilized? Her brother laughed. "What did you think you'd see? 'Wild Indians'? Of course it's civilized; but—for the love of Mike, Nature, look there!"

Nancy looked. An Indian square was coming toward them, her shoulders covered by a grey, striped shawl, a wee black-eyed papoose strapped to her back. Said Jack, as she disappeared around a corner: "That must be the old times must have been ordered for our especial benefit. I don't suppose they carried their kids like that in those days?"

CIRCLES

The stars, the moon,
The golden sun,
This spinning Earth
We ride upon
Are circles,
Circling on their way;
More circles bring
Us night and day.

From birth to death
This journey Nature plans
Is but a circling
Caravan.
From low to high
We pass in circles
Till we die.

Yet gladly all
In circles move;
For circles show
The path to life's
Eternal love.

The Flu Menace

Disease Not So Dangerous If Isolated As Soon As Diagnosed

If influenza cases were isolated as soon as diagnosed, the death rate now attributed to the disease would drop to one of its present figure, Dr. J. W. McIntosh of Vancouver said in an address before the vital statistics section of the Ontario Public Health Association.

"I am perfectly convinced influenza is not a fatal disease," he said. He had tabulated 2,000 deaths attributed to "flu," but it had been found in all cases death had actually been due to pneumonia or streptococcus, contracted because of overcrowding in hospitals and because of lowered resistance brought on by "flu," he said.

Landlocked Hungary's first Custer House in a report has just been opened in the Italian port of Fiume on the Adriatic.

Were Voluntary Exiles

Famous Doctors Have Spent Months Abroad In Interests Of Science

It is not only in the frozen regions that men have exiled themselves for the sake of science. The famous Koch spent eighteen months, alone except for the white helper, on a desolate island in the centre of the great African lake, Victoria Nyanza, and was investigating the deadly sleeping sickness which was destroying the natives of the islands and shores of the lake, and made the discovery that the fly which spreads the disease lives on the blood of crocodiles, which it sucks between the scales. Destroy the crocodiles, and the carrier perishes, too.

Another man of medicine, Dr. Andreas Verhagen, banished himself to the centre of the vast island of Sumatra to investigate beriberi, another terrible tropical disease. On the way he was wrecked, and he and one companion who reached the shore in safety tried to make their way to the nearest native village.

They got into a swamp and were almost killed by leeches, not to speak of bloodsuckers, but a poisonous king, Dr. Verhagen lost one eye and came very near to losing his life. Yet after he had recovered he continued his journey and gained valuable information about a cure for beriberi.

Large Music Library

Recognition Given To B.B.C. Collection In London

A music library that began thirteen years ago in a tiny top floor room in the Strand, London, has now grown to be the largest of its kind in the world. Housed on the top shelves of the British Broadcasting Corporation, this working library comprises 20,000 musical titles ranging from a simple ballad for soprano and piano to a symphony in several movements. There are 100,000 vocal scores, covering the entire field from grand opera to musical comedy. The library contains some music not to be obtained elsewhere, thus brings the most notable productions within reach of the general public. Already ten million British homes rely on the B.B.C. Library for their musical fare, the excellence of which has received worldwide recognition.—The New Outlook.

Pageant Scene Banned

Gordon Riots Will Not Be Depicted In London

Depicting the Gordon riots of 1780, one of the 12 historical episodes being rehearsed for the Tower of London Pageant in London, has been banned by the British Home Office. No reason is understood, has been given for the ban, but another episode is to be substituted. The object of the pageant is to raise funds for the Tower Hill Improvement Organization, of which the Prince of Wales is patron. Lord George Gordon, headed the mob which, in June, 1780, marched in procession to the Houses of Parliament to present a motion picture against the Catholic Relief Act. A riot followed and continued for several days, during which the city was virtually at the mercy of the mob.

Flags Took The Rent

In one street in Ardwick recently (restored with streamers and masted flags for the King's Jubilee), the following message was inscribed in whitewash on the roadway and pavement (reports the Manchester Guardian):

"Warning! This street is closed to landlords. Rent spent by order."

Dutch airplanes recently carried a record cargo of gold valued at $1,000,000 from Amsterdam to Croydon, with no special guard.

No More Cheap Mustard for Me!

"What's the trouble now, Annie?"

"I made up my usual tried and tested Pickle recipe, but a friend of mine told me to use Bulk Mustard. It was cheaper, I did. It spoiled the lot!"

"That's too bad, Annie. You'll stick to Koon's after this! It is the pure mustard, so you always know just how much to use and you need never waste or spoil anything."

Another man of medicine, Dr. Andreas Verhagen, banished himself to the centre of the vast island of Sumatra to investigate beriberi, another terrible tropical disease. On the way he was wrecked, and he and one companion who reached the shore in safety tried to make their way to the nearest native village.

Little Helps For This Week

"Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." Matthew 19:19.

So others shall take patience, labor thy heart and hand. From thy hand, and thy heart, And thy hand, and thy heart. And thy hand, and thy heart. The least of us, with a brim- ming cup may stand, And others shall take patience, labor thy heart and hand.

What is meant by our neighbor we cannot doubt, it is everyone with whom we are brought in contact. First of all he is literally our neighbor who is next to us in our own family and household. Then it is he who is next to us in our own neighborhood, our own town, in our own street. With these all charity begins. To love and be kind to those is the beginning of all true religion. But besides these, as our Lord teaches, is the one who is thrown across our path by the changes and chances of life, he or she whomsoever the unfortunate stranger we may meet in travelling, the friend whom no one else cares to look after.

Guard Health Of Tourists
Ontario tourist camps are to be investigated by the health department this summer, to make certain proper sanitary conditions are observed. Hon. J. A. Faulkner, minister of health, said when addressing the Canadian Public Health Association, in convention at Toronto.

During the worst dust storm ever known in Iraq recently 2,300 tons of dust to the square mile fell in the Bagdad district.

In the sound library at the Paramount studio, Hollywood, there is stored a file of more than 10,000 different sounds for use in films.

Russia is training more than 30,000 air pilots and mechanics through her military organization annually.

A LITTLE COMPANY GROWN BIG

IMPERIAL OIL was a little Company in 1880. There was then only a handful of employees. A dozen or so products were the Company's stock in trade.

Today nearly 18,000 Canadian men and women are engaged in making and selling 714 different Imperial Oil Products. So counting their families, there are about 90,000 people directly dependent for livelihood on this Company and its operations. 90,000 is a lot of Canadians.

Imperial Oil's growth depended upon more than growth in population and demand. Fair dealing, honest value and the ability to meet new needs with new products and new services all played their part. Of course, a loyal, capable staff was indispensable. Such a staff was built up by fair and considerate treatment. Good wages, sickness and death benefits, retirement pensions, group insurance, industrial councils—these are some of the measures by which the Company has recognized its responsibility to the men and women in its employ.

These men and women have recognized in turn their responsibility to the Company. By loyal, wholehearted service they have helped it to make better products at lower cost and thus become "a big company."

The Sign of a Fair Deal
